

Mr Wojciech Zdanowicz graduated from Szczecin's Maritime University, including part of the studies at Liverpool's John Moore's University, obtaining Master and Bachelor of Science in maritime navigation and life-saving. He qualified as a Deck Officer in 2006. Since 2007 Mr. Zdanowicz has been working for the maritime administration, including 2 years in European Maritime Safety Agency. He has been involved in the maritime safety and security issues, including coordination and participation in preparations of international, European and national Polish laws and regulations, as well as practical implementation of these laws and regulations in Poland. He has been carrying out monitoring, inspections and audits activities of maritime administration, Recognised Organisations and ports in the scope of maritime safety and security. Mr. Zdanowicz has been holding various positions in Polish Maritime Administration, including Chief Expert on Maritime Safety, Head of Unit of Maritime Safety and Security Division and Councillor to the Minister on Maritime Safety and Security. Presently Mr. Wojciech Zdanowicz holds position of Deputy Director of Department for Maritime Transport and Shipping Safety in the Ministry of Infrastructure and Development of the Republic of Poland.